CHICAGO GANGSTERS BITE THE DUST

TWO NOTORIOUS CHICAGO BEER RUNNERS ARE SHOT

Gangster Guns Belch Forth Thanksgiving Day—Deadly Machine Gun Heard On the South Side Again In Renewal of Beer War—One Hundred Shots Fired—Two Brothers, Alleged Bootleggers, and Bystander Wounded—Assailants In Auto.

The rat-a-tat-tat of a gangster machine gun and shotguns broke the Thanksgiving quiet of the South Side Thursday night in Chicago and when the smoke of the battle had cleared two notorious gangsters and a bystander lay wounded in the street, the result of a renewal of the war of extermination between rival bands of bootleggers and gangsters.

The victims of Thursday night's outbreak were Thomas and Charles O'Donnell, bootlegging gangsters brothers of Edward ("Spike") O'Donnell, who has engaged in the "beer racket."

The bystander who was wounded was Charles Barrett, and standing only a few feet from the scene of the shooting was John Conroy, county assessor, who was unhurt.

The battle was as spectacular as that waged in State street, on the North side, a few weeks ago, when several gangsters were shot by rivals hidden in an apartment building and armed with a machine gun.

The O'Donnell brothers were cornered by several men riding in an automobile from which bristled the muzzles of a machine gun and several shotguns.

Charles O'Donnell had left the home of Miss Margaret Burns, and his brother, Thomas, at the same moment came out of a cigar store across the street when the automobile pulled up a few feet distant.

One man leaped from the automobile with a shotgun, and, running across the street, pointed it as Charles O'Donnell and fired. As if the first shot was a signal, the occupants of the automobile blazed away with shot guns and a machine gun, raking the street in the vicinity of the O'Donnells with more than 100 shots while pedestrians scurried for cover.

Charles O'Donnell fell at the first shot and his brother was struck while one slug hit Barrett, a bystander. An automobile owned by the O'Donnells, parked nearby, was swept with bullets, but it was unoccupied.

It at first was reported that there also was firing from a second automobile loaded with gangsters, but police were unable to verify the report.

Charles O'Donnell, shot thru his back, was found in a hospital by police. His condition is serious. Thomas was shot in his arm and his wound is not serious. He was taken to a hospital where he refused to give any information to police, contending he did not know his assailants.

Barrett was struck in his right shoulder and said he knew nothing about the shooting.

Thomas O'Donnell said that he just "happened by" and did not know Charles was calling upon Miss Burns. He said his brother, "Spike" was at a football game.

Police immediately started to round up rival gang leaders and hoodlums. They were looking particularly for a man known only as "Cogger" who had a fight with Charles O'Donnell last Saturday night near where Thursday's shooting took place and who had made threats against him.

The O'Donnell gang was one of the first beer running bands on the South Side. Originally there was five brothers, Edward, ("Spike"), the leader; Tom and Charles and Walter. John, another brother, was not involved in the organization, so far as known.

Walter O'Donnell was killed in 1925 with a companion, Harry Hassmiller, when the two invaded a roadhouse in the territory of Johnny Torrio, an arch enemy, and tried to "shoot up" the place.

Full Cargo of Chicago Products Sails for Europe

A cargo of coal tar pitch, manufactured in Chicago at the plant of the F. J. Lewis company, was loaded on the Norwegian freighter Rein for shipment to Dunkirk, France. Officials of the company declared that to their knowledge the shipment is the first full cargo of strictly Chicago-made products loaded from the maker's dock for a direct-to-Europe voyage.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Oberlin — George Wood, 48, died here following an attack of pneumonia. He was widely known because of his work with boys. Wood had made his home a club house for boys and had organized "kid" basketball, football and gymnastic teams spending hundreds of dollars for equipment in addition to his time.

Toledo — An unidentified man leaped to his death from a bridge here during a blinding rain. This is the third death by leaping from bridges in Toledo this fall.

Alliance — Thomas Hauser, 19, and John Hauser, 21, were killed and Mrs. Laura Hauser, 51, was seriously injured when their automobile was struck Thursday by a Pennsylvania passenger train. Mrs. Mary Moore, 57, died in the hospital as the result of injuries received when struck by an automobile while crossing the street.

Cincinnati — Automobile fatalities for the year in Hamilton county have reached 129. Mrs. Philippine Vokering, 62, was struck by an automobile on November 9, and died from her injuries.

Galion — Republicans in the general assembly are not to have all the excitement incident to the selection of officers for the 1927 session. There is prospect of a lively contest among the Democrats for the minority leadership of the house. Two candidates have been announced while there may be others. Frank H. Ward, a third term from Monroe county, has announced his candidacy for the minority leadership of the house. T. T. Heiser of Greenfield, is being boomed for the office by a number of friends.

Toledo — A man's torso was hunted by police today following finding of a head and several pieces of a man's legs near here. Three other pieces of the upper limbs of the murder victim were found late yesterday lying a culvert on the outskirts of Toledo. The head of the body was found the day previous in a field near here.

Twins in Birth, 74 Years of Life, and in Grave

Ft. Morgan, Colo.—A double funeral has just been held at Alamosa, Colo., for twin sisters whose lives had been so closely linked that when a link was broken through the death of one sister the other died within two hours.

The twins, Miss Myra Scott and Mrs. Cynthia Whitelad, aged seventy-four, were born at Freedom, Ind., and were inseparable from the cradle to the grave. They were as much alike as the proverbial "two peas in a pod" even in old age. When Cynthia was married 80 years ago and with her husband moved to Colorado, Myra decided also to come with them.

The other evening Myra complained of dizziness and went to bed early. Just before midnight she gave a cry for her twin sister, and before aid could reach her, died of heart disease. The sister refused to be consoled and died two hours later. They were buried in twin coffins and in twin graves.

WILL NOT LEASE.

SANTA CLAUS INVITED TO CIRCLEVILLE

Mayor Fitzpatrick Assured He Will Come With Eskimo and Reindeer.

Well, the thing happened!

Mayor George M. Fitzpatrick spent Thanksgiving day in Columbus with other mayors from surrounding cities as guests of the Columbus Dispatch, and witnessed the Santa Claus ceremony at Franklin park. He also extended to Santa, an invitation to bring his reindeer, Eskimo, and everything to Circleville in the near future.

The invitation of Mayor Fitzpatrick was accepted, so Santa will be here, the date of which will be announced the first of the coming week.

Thousands witnessed the ceremony in Columbus Thursday, standing for over an hour in a steady down-pour of rain, young and old, fathers and mothers with children, and others with many, many years on them, but childless, enjoying the day just as much as the child of five or six years.

Mayor Thomas welcomed Santa Claus and the visiting mayors to Columbus; Santa responded and the Eskimos talked in the English language. At the park one of the most interesting persons was little Jane Loewen, chairman of the Children's committee, who welcomed Santa on behalf of the children of Columbus.

A tentative program is being worked out now by Mayor Fitzpatrick which will be submitted to Mr. Charles S. Williams, who has charge of Santa and his aour of the cities surrounding Columbus.

It has been reported that the reindeer used by Santa were from a park near Columbus. This report is untrue as Mr. Young, the promoter of the advertising department of the Dispatch informed the mayor that the reindeer and Eskimos were from Nome, Alaska, and have only been in the state the past few days. They are now located in temporary quarters at the corner of Fifth and Broad street, Columbus.

The mayor asked the editor of the Union-Herald to tell all children to have their letters ready for Santa when he comes, or mail them to him in care of this office.

Watch paper for date of visit.

Thursday night in Columbus Mayor Fitzpatrick and other mayors present were entertained to a turkey dinner at the Deshler, as guests of the Columbus Dispatch.

Women's Field of Work With Government Grows

Washington.—A slow but certain widening of the field of women's service in federal government departments is clearly evident, the women's bureau of the Department of Labor reported, but the proportion of men receiving the more attractive government salaries still far exceeds that of women.

The highest yearly salary received by any woman government employee, a survey disclosed, is $6,500 to the civil service commissioner. Only ten out of the thousands of other woman employees receive as much as $5,200 and only 35 receive $3,600 or more.

Measured by the number of women receiving $1,800 or more annually, stenographic and clerical positions offer opportunity for advancement to the larger number of women, but the survey added that, measured by the proportion who reach and exceed this amount, the greater opportunities for women lie in professional and scientific fields.

Roiled by Stamps

Berlin.—New one-cent stamps, bearing the likeness of Frederick the Great, are regarded by Communists as a provocation to the working classes and they demand suppression of the issue.

Mrs. C. C. Schwarz and Miss Martha Leist spent the day in Columbus.

Eskimos Hearty Eaters

The Eskimos are enormous eaters. One small family can finish a seal at a sitting, and the husky hunters eat surprising quantities of whale blubber and raw meat at frequent intervals.

BABY'S POSITION MOST PERILOUS

"The most dangerous occupation in the world is that of a baby, and the younger it is, the more perilous its position," asserted Captain Paul Mason in his weekly state health department talk broadcast by WAIU, Monday afternoon.

"This," he said, "is proved by the records right here in Ohio. In 1925 there were 127,358 births in the state; 8,841 of these babies died before they were a year old; 2,476 died the first day, 3,684 the first week and 4,731 the first month. In 1924 there were 132,048 births, and 8,794 babies died before they were a year old.

"The human baby is the most helpless and most dependent of all beings. The motherhood instinct, however, is not enough for guidance in their care. Knowledge, based on medical science, is necessary to protect the baby against sickness and accidents."

The radio talk included a set of simple instructions upon infant feeding between birth and the first year, and also some advice for care of the pre-school youngster.—O. S. Journal.

INTERESTING MEETING

OF DERBY W. C. T. U.

The November meeting of Derby W. C. T. U., held at the home of Mrs. Martha McKinley, was a very interesting one. Topic for the afternoon: "Our Prison Reform Department." Following subjects were discussed: How to Prevent Crime, What Makes Young Criminals? How Prisoners Should be Classed and the Indeterminate Sentence.

The discussion on these subjects were fine, each lady expressed her opinion and some fine points were brought out how to prevent petty crimes, responsibility is placed upon the home, the school, religious training, swift and sure punishment, compulsory education, the boy scout movement, boys club, the farm colony for delinquents, prohibition of the sale and the use of firearms.

In addition to these cures we added that a proper enforcement of law would do much to prevent crime. Let us foster and help in the advancement of every plan having for its object the suppression and prevention of crime.

Mrs. Ruth Liston had charge of the program part of the meeting. Mrs. Clara Bauhan, superintendent of parliamentary usage gave a ten minute drill in parliamentary law. Each member is planning to carry out the rules of parliamentary law thru the year's work. Let each member bring her parliamentary book at the next meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Sara Musselman, December 14. Time of meeting has been changed on account of the days being shorter, which will begin at 1:30 Standard. Don't forget the time.

The President Mrs. Jennie Stump, will have charge of the next meeting. Topic: Good Health Essential to Activity. Assisting hostesses, Mrs. Ilo Creamer, Mrs. Matilda Gardner, Mrs. Frances Winfough and Mrs. Nelle Bauhan.

This society mourns over the loss of one of the oldest members, Mrs. Henry Deck, who passed away to the great beyond November 10.

Mob and Mass Psychology

The term "mob psychology" refers to the mental processes of a mob. It is a well-known fact that persons will do things collectively, especially in a large and disorderly gathering, which they would never think of doing individually. "Mass psychology" is used in a closely related sense.

Austrians Use Sirens to Filibuster in Diet

London.—Members of the opposition in Parliament are envying the ingenuity of the Styrian diet, in Austria, who have evolved a method of filibustering far surpassing the old-fashioned device of delivering long-winded orations. Determined to frustrate the election of Dr. Anton Rintelen as governor of the province, the Social Democrats appeared in parliament armed with storage batteries and phonographs.

They connected the batteries with sirens, whistles, trumpets and other wind instruments and turned on the current. This cramped the parliament's style. Then they set phonographs going, playing different tunes at the same time, whereupon all legislative business was halted. These concerts were kept up for more than a week, keeping a regular schedule from 11 in the morning to 8 in the evening, with short intervals for meals.

Cockfighting Is Being Revived in England

Derby, England.—Cockfighting is being slowly revived in England, notwithstanding the law against it. During the present week a fight was secretly staged in one the Derbyshire hills. A large crowd witnessed seven battles in which five birds were killed and two maimed. The sweepstakes totaled $2,000 and there was considerable betting. "Cocker" societies are said to exist in almost every county in England and fights are staged without interference by the police.

SOLD MINE FOR $500;
LOST HALF-MILLION

Canadian Prospector Original "Hard Luck" Miner.

Quesnel, B. C.—Some weeks ago the press of this continent chronicled the death of Abe Stott, characterized the original "hard luck" miner of this district. The story was told how Stott had sold for $500 a claim which brought its purchaser a cool half million.

Since Stott's death the story of his early adventures in the Cariboo country has been told by old-timers who knew him well and were in the territory when he listened to wisecracks who told him there could not be gold in his holdings and witnessed him sell his birthright for a mess of pottage.

Pat McKenna, a young Irish policeman, fresh from the Chicago blue-coated force, gets a place in this story, because, if he had not made Stott's acquaintance the Englishman probably never would have made his strike.

McKenna made his way up to Barkerville, the headquarters of the Cariboo miners and after a week of trying to drink the hardened miners under the table, he decided to seek a quieter spot. He ran into Stott, who told him of the quietude around Eight-Mile lake where the fish bit well.

Find Gold Near Camp.

A week in the new atmosphere was enough for the young Irishman to throw off the effect of his drinking bout and give him his fill of fishing. He decided he would do some prospecting. He did not know how to go about it and Stott, a window dresser, could give him little assistance. So Pat decided to start right at the camp.

He dug a hole in front of the tent and washed the dirt in the brook which ran by. Presently he discovered nuggets in the bottom of his pan, even though practical miners said formation of the ground barred gold. Yet the partners turned up gold-nuggets whenever they felt like panning a barrowful. Occasionally they went out, fished a day or two and replenished their pokes for months at a time.

Even then the scientists wouldn't admit gold was there in paying quantities. Eventually Stott became disheartened and sold his share in the claim to Billy Ogden, an old-time prospector, for $500.

Ogden and McKenna worked their claim for a while and when a Minneapolis man named Hannah offered them $10,000 for their property they grabbed it before the buyer could change his mind. Hannah began intensive work on the mine and when he got through with it he had taken gold to the value of $500,000 from his claim.

Pat Buys a Saloon.

McKenna took his $8,000 and bought a saloon from a smart business woman. The open-hearted Irishman had trusted the woman and she had taken advantage of him, stripping the place of nearly everything of value before she turned it over to him. Pat was not a success as a saloonkeeper and the business deteriorated to such an extent that he, too, was soon out in the hills, prospecting in earnest.

But he had left it until too late. Repeated and continued efforts to uphold his reputation as a drinker had undermined his health.

"Be the howlies," he often declared, "ye can't beat them ould Cariboo miners anywhere."

Pat died a few months later and was buried in the hills he loved so well. And now his partner has passed on.

Rajah Buys Auto With Light to Dazzle Animals

London.—Camouflaged in green, brown and other shades of the jungles so as to deceive the keen eyes of wild animals, a special hunting automobile has been completed here for Rajah S. M. Saadat Ali Khan of Nampara, India. A dazzle light to bewilder tigers and lions is part of the equipment of the car, which cost about $20,000.

The car is of 50 horsepower and was designed for exclusive use in the jungles. It has buffers in front and behind to protect it from charges by wild animals. It has room for six persons. Included in its equipment is an icebox for cooling bottled drinks, a water tank, a first-aid outfit and clips for rifles and shotguns.

Starched Collar Called Instrument of Torture

Paris.—That the starched collar is an instrument of torture, a strait-jacket for the neck, and must disappear is the first article in the by-laws of the Anti-Collar league, recently organized in Paris. The founders are all writers of some note, but the collarless fashion is making timid progress.

At the first meeting of the league Andre Antoine, a noted author and theatrical critic, was elected president and an executive committee formed. Press photographers in attendance asked the committee to pose for a picture. When the picture appeared in the newspapers it was found that seven out of eight on the committee were wearing stiff collars.

Women Poisoners' Club Revealed in Belgrade

Belgrade.—A club of women poisoners, under the guise of a charitable organization with the significant name of "Lucretia," has been railed here.

Police assert that at secret meetings the club members were taught the medieval art of mixing and administering poisons. Six women unhappily married were declared thus to have found means of ridding themselves of their husbands. The remains of these were exhumed and in two cases toxicologists have determined the presence of poisons.

Five women were arrested charged with being the ringleaders of the organization.

MONDAY CLUB LISTENED TO GOOD PROGRAM

Topic, Current Events, Was Divided Into Four Classes and Well Presented.

The Monday club met in regular session on Monday evening, November 22. A good attendance listened to the interesting program prepared. The topic of the evening was Current Events and was divided into four heads:

In National Affairs; In Scientific Discoveries; Activities of Women and In Foreign Countries.

Mrs. Eagleson's paper dealt ably with affairs concerning the national life. She spoke of the death of four men, each of whom, in his own sphere was a national figure. These were Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the martyred president; Dr. Charles W. Elliot, president emeritus of Harvard university; Eugene V. Debbs, four times socialist candidate for president of United States and "Uncle Joe" Cannon, loved for his whimsical personality.

The appointment of Charles Evans Hughes, as a United States member of the Hague permanent court of arbitration, was well received in legal and political circles.

Colonel Carmi Thompson's appointment to study conditions in the Philippines and the refusal of the secretary of state to allow Madam Kollantay, the Soviet representative to Mexico, to travel thru the United States in order to reach her destination and the tour of Marie, Queen of Roumania, thru the United States were all touched upon and made interesting, as was also President Coolidge's speech at the dedication of the Liberty memorial to World War veterans, November 11, at Kansas City, Missouri.

Her paper closed with a review of the results of the recent elections and some comments on the cotton situation and its effect upon the south.

Mrs. Noecker read an interesting paper on scientific discoveries.

Owing to illness the paper on Activities of Women was omitted.

Mrs. Charles Gerhardt closed the program with a paper on Current Events in Foreign Countries. She spoke of some England's problems, paying tribute to the Hon. Alanson B. Houghton, our ambassador, and said that for the first time in our history as a nation, we owned a residence in which to house our ambassador. The dawn of a new peace was ushered in when Germany took her seat beside her ancient enemy, France, in the League of Nations at Geneva.

She spoke of changing conditions in China and efforts of the Chinese to adopt western customs. At a high-class tailor shop a sign was displayed "Respectable ladies have fits upstairs."

Conditions in Greece were not overlooked, nor was the fact that too much emphasis is being placed upon the Anti-American feelings in France.

ROTARIANS AND ROTARY ANNS ENJOY TURKEY DINNER AT ELKS' HOME

Rudolph Wittinnmeyer German Monologist; Little Ruth, Dancer, and Tom Kessler's Family Orchestra Furnished a Fine Entertainment---Joy of Occasion Was Marred By a Most Distressing Accident.

Tom Kessler and His Family Orchestra.

The members of the Circleville Rotary club with their wives and sweethearts, a total of one hundred, spent a most delightful evening Wednesday at the Elks Home on North Court street.

The occasion was the annual Thanksgiving dinner of the club and turkey, with all the trimmings, was served in the banquet rooms.

The committee in charge was R. L. Brehmer, George E. Roth and Walter Nelson, and the Rotarians and Rotary Anns were mightily pleased with the feed and the entertainment.

Rotarian Roth had charge of the program and introduced Mr. Rudolph Wittinnmeyer, of Columbus, who furnished many a good laugh with his German monologues. He was roundly encored and generously responded with what seemed to be an inexhaustible fund of stories told in his inimitable, natural manner. His daughter, little Ruth Wittinnmeyer, aged ten, avored the company with several dances, very cleverly executed.

The music before, during and after dinner was furnished by Rotarian Tom Kessler, of Lancaster, and his family orchestra, which made a good hit with the assemblage with their singing and with their playing on various instruments. All who were fortunate enough to hear this orchestra are hoping that they may soon have the pleasure of listening to them again in the near future.

Everybody was in good spirits (not frumtenti) and all was going as merrily as a marriage bell when a most untoward, unexplainable and unnecessary accident cast a pall of gloom over their rejoicing and filled their hearts with the deepest sorrow. Oscar Howard was presiding with his usual grace, dignity and tact, and he introduced Harry Stevenson, who is a few choice words, (chosen by himself) told his hearers that following the custom of Rotarians, he wished to bestow on one of the members, on behalf of the club, a precious gift. This was to be given to the Rotarian who had performed the greatest service to the community in the last twelve months.

After recounting the wonderful accomplishments of the paragon in and out of the club, he named his man and handed a glass water set consisting of pitcher and six glasses to Frank Barnhill, and told him to hand it to Bob Brehmer, as a token of the club's appreciation of his ability and willingness to do our people good.

In the excitement Frank's foot slipped, the water set went crashing to the cement floor and was broken (the water set) into a thousand pieces and eighty cents of the club's money was worse than wasted.

President Oscar "sympathized" with the chairman of the committee, but that did not restore the broken, not "cut," glassware.

Sophisticated Infant

Governess (finishing story)—"And so they were married and lived happily ever after. There! Isn't that lovely?" Modern Child—"Oh, yes, very nice; but I'd rather have the thrill of a divorce."—Boston Transcript.

Special Labor Days

The three days set aside by organized labor as its own days—Labor day, the first Monday in September; Labor Sunday, the Sunday preceding Labor day, and Labor's Memorial Sunday, the fourth Sunday in May.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The marriage of Miss Esther Olive Goldsberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Esker Goldsberry, of Walnut township to Mr. Robert W. Dietsch, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Dietsch, of West Jefferson, was solemnized Friday. Miss Goldsberry is a graduate of Walnut township high school class of '23. They will be at home after Sunday in the home of the bride's parents.—Pickaway News.

A surprise was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Goff at the home of their son-in-law, John J. Mack, and family on West Franklin street Thanksgiving day. It was in the nature of a family reunion and an elegant three course dinner was served. Covers were laid for Mrs. Harry E. Saylor, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. James Bachelor, Miss Laura Goff and George Knorr, of Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mack and their daughter, Miss Helen Mack.

Mrs. Annette Conyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hervey J. Sweyer, and Mr. Emmett Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Brown, of Washington township, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents on West High street Thursday evening at 5 o'clock. Rev. Franklin McElfresh, of the First Methodist Episcopal church, was the officiating minister. The bride was becomingly attired in a creation of blue crepe with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of roses and chrysanthemums. Only the immediate relatives of both families were present. A wedding supper was served following the ceremony. The young couple went north on a wedding trip and after their return they will make their home, provided and furnished by the groom on a farm in Washington township.

Rich in Precious Metals

Mexico, the United States, Canada and Peru are the largest silver producers, in the order named. Canada is a comparatively recent entry in the list, but the Peruvian mines have been producing nearly 400 years and Mexico's for more than three centuries. Each of these countries also is a large producer of gold.

Grows in Wisdom

A very young girl is usually grateful for even the smallest gift, points out Thyra Samter Winslow in an article in Liberty, but as she grows older, and finds that men want to be rewarded for their presents, she learns "not only to look a gift horse in the mouth, but to count his teeth and examine his mane and tail as well."

Fight Botflies During WinterCarbon-Disulphide Capsules Found to Be Effective Against Pests.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Most everyone having anything to do with horses is familiar with botflies and the annoyance they cause the animals during the summer when they are active in laying their eggs on the hairs of the legs, throat or lips. Few horsemen realize, however, the injurious effects of the bot or maggot stage. In biting or licking itself the horse takes the eggs into the mouth, from where they reach the stomach and intestines, developing into the bot or maggot stage. Here the bots remain for several months before being developed fully and passed out. During this time they not only interfere with digestion but may actually cause stoppage and result in death.

Early Winter Treatment.

Investigations conducted a number of years ago in Italy showed that bots within horses could be destroyed by administering carbon-disulphide capsules. This treatment has been tested by the United States Department of Agriculture and found to be very effective. A very important consideration in obtaining the best results is the matter of time of treatment, says the department. Carbon disulphide will remove many bots at any time of the year, but the greatest efficiency can be obtained in winter months, preferably December or January. Early winter treatment is advisable, because horses freed from the parasites early will pass the winter in better condition.

Encouraging Results.

In the last few years a number of communities have attempted bot control by systematic treatment of all donkeys, mules, horses and colts. Results have been encouraging. Not only has the annoyance from nose botflies and other botflies been greatly decreased after a single year's effort but a general improvement has been reported in the condition and health of the horses. It appears entirely feasible, especially in regions where there are very few horses on pasture, to eradicate horse bots by a combination of the carbon-disulphide treatment and the application of washes for the destruction of the eggs. Every horse should be washed with a 2 per cent coal-tar creosote dip to destroy the young bots which remain dormant in the eggs. Thorough treatment of all animals in a community should be very profitable if continued two or three years. Reinfestation is not liable to occur except where untreated animals are brought in, as it is believed the flies do not travel more than half a mile.

Lay Plans Now for Next Year's Egg Production

"If you want to make a profit on your poultry you must get eggs during the winter months," declared J. G. Halpin of the Wisconsin university poultry department before a group of farmers during the recent annual Farmers' week.

"In the month of January, 1925, a farm flock of 200 hens in Dane county produced $146 worth of eggs besides those eaten at home, giving a net income over feed costs for the month of $93," related the poultry man.

These results were obtained by the farmer because he followed "tried out" successful poultry facts. Pullets must be well matured, pointed out Halpin, and Leghorn pullets should weigh 3½ pounds each and the Rock, Rhode Island Red, and Wyandotte pullets should weigh 5½ to 6 pounds.

Early hatching, proper feed and plenty of direct sunlight are essentials to the growth of the little chicks so that they will develop into healthy laying pullets," says Halpin. He gives as a good chick ration the following: 80 pounds of ground yellow corn; 20 pounds of wheat middlings; 5 pounds ground raw bone; 5 pounds pearl grit; 1 pound common salt, and plenty of milk (whole milk first few days, then begin to feed skim milk) and give no water.

Labor-Saving DevicesRevolutionize Farming

"The outstanding feature of American agriculture the last 75 years has been the adoption of labor saving farm machinery," said H. B. Walker, professor of agricultural engineering in Kansas State college, to an audience of farm and university people attending farmers' and homemakers' short course exercises at University farm, St. Paul.

"Seventy-five years ago the average farm worker cared for 12 acres of crops," he said; "today the average for the United States is 34 acres, or nearly three times that of 75 years ago. Although we have only twice the number of agricultural workers we had 75 years ago, these workers are caring for nearly six times the acreage of crops."

It was pointed out by Professor Walker that the direct effect of these new efficiencies and economies, brought about by labor saving devices, has been greater individual returns for the farm worker, the release of millions of workers for other pursuits, the greater production of luxuries, lower costs of the necessities of life, shorter working days, and higher standards of living.

Old London Playground

Ranelagh was a fashionable London pleasure resort of the Eighteenth century. The rotunda was built on the model of the Parthenon. It stood in a beautiful garden and accommodated 6,000 persons. The grounds are now occupied by the Chelsea hospital.

Fast washing made safeThe New HAAG VORTEX embodies a patented feature that makes fast washing safe.

The vertical crevice which is found at the base of the agitator in most washers of this type is apt to tear and wear clothing and crush buttons by grinding them between the two metal surfaces forming the crevice. This is not possible in the Haag Vortex. A patented design (it cannot be had in any other machine) eliminates entirely this destructive crack. For that reason the Haag Vortex can wash fast—60 pounds per hour—with perfect safety to clothing.

Every woman appreciates the new metal swinging wringer on the Vortex. You'll like it too. It has extra large semi-soft paralastic rolls. The bearings are made of wood which has been soaked in tallow. They require no oil—eliminating all chance of grease streaked clothing.

Call us on the phone and ask for a free demonstration in your own home. You will not be obligated.

Many of our friends tell us they have found that a good credit with The City Loan is of greater value than money on deposit. There is less temptation to spend and more of an incentive to make each dollar count. A loan is readily arranged, and the borrowed cash will oftentimes drive even a closer bargain than money that is too easily withdrawn from a savings account.

Fair and reasonable consideration, in case of "bad breaks" arising from sickness or unemployment can always be relied on. Frankly tell us your trouble and we will do our best to help you. An honest man dealing with The City Loan has nothing to worry about.

Livable, Lovable Rooms

They owe much of their inviting charm to the deep comfort of

3-Piece Suites

From April till September one's passion for wicker and cretonne goes joyfully unchecked. But after that, say about the time the sun begins to slant pale gold and the wind takes on an edge—wicker and its playmates seem strangely cold and heartless (and spring-less)! While the mere mention of "overstuffed," "velour," "tapestry" calls up before eager eyes visions of untold warmth and friendliness. And warmth and friendliness are two things a winter living room needs to make it a success—to make it livable and lovable.

A 3-Piece Suite, the solid foundation upon which a living room can be built.

The Cyclone a Providence

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright.)

JOE HOPSON and Jean Graham had been romping comrades since the day they could toddle. Thus it had come to be said: "What a pity the boy wasn't the girl, the girl the boy"—he was so much the prettier, she much more the figure and temper that promised a man. Not exactly ugly—but with a thin face she could screw into ninety-seven shapes at pleasure, darkling eyes, and of a supple strength almost uncanny. Joe, just her height, had evolved from a rose-leaf baby, a fetching Cupidon, into a manly beauty he truly hated, notwithstanding he had his full share of sex vitality. Girls went down before him like grain before the sickle—Jean was the honorable exception proving the rule.

Therefore, such is human contrariness—he fought protective battles with her over everything she chose to approve. He had rather die than have her laugh at his loving—and laugh she would, being as to sentiment utterly hard-boiled. His trustiest shield was a pretended fear of being married out of hand—which she feigned to resent hotly. She grumbled openly: "Why can't you submit to Fate's decree, man? Why else do Hopson and Graham lands lie broadside one to another? Make the finest plantation in seven counties—and you know I'm a born land-lover—I'd manage so it would outdo any other in the state." To which he countered: "Buy it if you want it so badly. You can have fifty years' time to pay for it—I'll feel like a freed bird with the wretched acres off my hands." The pair were, to speak the truth, in the grip of emotional static—so welded by use and wont they had vital need of each other, but withheld by prankish habit from admitting the fact.

This state might have run on indefinitely had not Mrs. Modred Mallinson blown across their path. Blown literally—a limited cyclone wrecked her car just at the boundaries of Graham and Hopson—so succor fell impartially to both halves. Joe helped first—pulling her half insensible from the shattered vehicle, then taking her to Jean, since even in disarray she was too young and pretty for a bachelor's guest. Her gratitude to both reached the height of fine art—even Jean could not discount it—for two whole days. Then she kept silence—but an appraising one, as Joe, also silently, discerned. A gossamer idea came to him through the discerning—it strengthened so fast by next day he chuckled at thought of it—though outwardly he held a countenance of grave anxiety.

Mrs. Modred Mallinson had intuitions—they made her sense rather than see in the cyclone a providence better than many cars. She kept the bed two days, the couch five more. By that time she had possessed herself of many leading facts—by help mainly of Mammy Charlotte to whom Jean had generously given her over. Mammy was in the main truthful—except upon the subject of Jean and Joe. Rich? Dee was richer'n cream an' peaches—dee owned er bank and er railroad, sldes deir lan', Kep' hit dest 'cause it had 'longed ter de fambly rum way back. No'm, dee wasn't sweethearts—dest sorter begged—had ter wait dey weddin' twell Jean gwine on twenty-three—so she mought wa'ar de jewelry—pearls and dimonts an' sech like—tote Miss her great-gramm had lef' dat-erway.

Sufficient, even more than sufficient, for a widow, whose fascination was her fortune, whose new weeds her weapon. Men she knew as she never knew books. Joe found himself elected the prop and stay of her faltering steps. Indeed, she almost clung to him, laughing a thought hysterically as she drooped against him at the least slacking of his arm. Slim, sinuous, yet curvey who shall blame her for refusing to grow stronger? She ate like a hurt bird, no matter how she was tempted. But Jean smiled gayly.

She also had intuitions—long ago she had divined Joe's case—and played him, using, however, in the playing Walton's caution as to the bait: "Use him as though you loved him." Now she saw as clearly through the wiles of her involuntary guest, and in her secret mind, rejoiced over them—they gave her the excuse she had wanted this year and more for a change of mood and mind. In gratitude she insisted upon leaving a laden tray accessible to Mrs. Modred the night through—Mammy said there must be sperits somwhars round, Eve'y grain and crum ob cake and biscuit, and all de chick'n bres' was gone. Cat! Hm! Cat mought a clumb through de winder, but nebber could a clumb back agin—too heavy after eating all dat—whereat Jean gave Mammy a silencing look, and ran clear to the lawn gate intent upon waylaying Joe.

"Behold a missionary!" she greeted him: "I've just found out I want and need something ever so badly—will you give it to me?"

"Life, fortune, honor—my skeered honor—all lie at your feet. Take your choice!" Joe cried gaily. "Say which—and when! Right quick."

"Why—I believe all three—they fill the measure of—my husband." Jean answered with the faintest blush. Joe reeled in saddle—but next minute had her in his arms. She released herself after five minutes, saying: "How about tomorrow? So Mrs. Modred can see the great event?"

"I never welched yet—too late to begin," Joe grinned. "By the way—wasn't the cyclone a providence?"

Cattle and Lightning

The greater portion of the loss of cattle killed by lightning is caused by cattle drifting against wire fences during thunderstorms and being struck by lightning, which may be collected by the fence at a distance and brought to the herd with sufficient force to kill them. It is not often that cattle are killed by direct stroke unless it be under trees.

STOUTSVILLE SCHOOL NOTES

After the election and the passing of the three mill levy, with the state aid our school was able to reopen on Monday, November 8. Two high school teachers resigned after school closed, but Miss Valentine and Miss Krebs were ready to take their places.

There will be no school on Thanksgiving, but everybody is ordered back to their studies the following Friday.

Our high school has sent several items to Lancaster to be published in the new high school magazine called "The Lantern."

A Student Council has been organized with Isabel Gearhart, a s manager, and Gail Creager, as assistant manager.

The S. H. S. orchestra has been playing a number of new selections of music and are preparing for the entertainments this winter. The orchestra consists of the following: Pianist, Elizabeth Crites; flute, Vaughn Crites; cornets, Harry Smith, Starling Knecht; Frances Hedges, clarinets, Nelson Crites, Leslie McClelland, Russel Hill, violins, Mary Hedges, Pauline Thomas, Anna Marion, Florence Hoffman, Lois Neff, Vivian Kittrell and Marvin Pearce; cello, Bernelle Goodman.

Russell Hill received a slight trouncing Friday when he came to school with skunk scent on him.

No Christmas vacation for our school will cause many a tear.

Miss Krebs reported Monday that the Latin test she gave Friday would be given again next Friday and every one was warned to get an A.

Our high school welcomed back Monday morning three of its old students, Paul Creager, Arthur Bunn and Charles Brown.

Ruth Amerine's favorite songs are as follows: "Get Away Old Man Get Away; "Sweetheart is a Pretty Name

When It Is you" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Mr. Deffenbaugh has been talking of organizing a mathematic club, to which everyone either in the algebra or the business arithmetic class may be a member.

Save It for Something Big

British Criminal Law

There is not in Great Britain the difference in the degree of criminality for murder known as first and second degree as in the United States. All murder is a capital offense punishable by hanging. Manslaughter may be pleaded and is punishable by imprisonment.

Muscles of the Head

The head has seventy-seven muscles—eight for the eyes and eyelids, one for the nose, eight for the lips, eight for the jaw, eleven for the tongue, eleven for the larynx, eleven for the ear, seventeen for motions of the head and neck, one to move the hairy scalp and one for the eyebrows.

Peace of Mind

Peace of mind must come in its own time, as the waters settle themselves in clearness as well as quietness; you can no more filter your mind into purity than you can compress it into calmness; you must keep it pure if you would have it pure, and throw no stones into it if you would have it quiet.—Ruskin.

Attraction of Gambling

"Gambling is an age-old means of escape from drab life," says Merrylye Stanley Rukeyser in an article in Liberty. "It is a device whereby those of low sensitivity and stunted imagination set up artificial hazards in order to get a kick out of life."

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union Herald:—James Whiteside Grabill, son of Isaac and Margaret Whiteside Grabill, the last of a family of three children; William Robert Grabill and Mrs. Catherine Barton, was born near Pherson, Pickaway county, Ohio, August 14, 1840, and departed this life November 20, 1926, aged 86 years, three months and six days.

He lived all of his life in Pickaway county; except two years, which were spent in Illinois when a boy. He returned to Ohio in 1850.

He was widely known as an industrious and useful citizen, always living an exemplary Christian life. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church at Five Points. His favorite motto was; "Do good to those who do aught against you and win them back."

He was united in marriage to Luvena Beathard, August 22, 1865. To this union were born four daughters; Mrs. Emma Dennis, Mrs. Lida Dennis, Mrs. Minnie Lane and Mrs. Inez Ankrom, who departed this life in October, 1926, and two sons, Isaac and William B. Grabill.

Besides the children mentioned, he leaves a devoted wife, fifteen grandchildren, twenty-two great-grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

No snowfall lighter than the snow of age; but none is heavier, for it never melts. The Scripture represents age by the almond tree which bears blossoms of the purest white. The almond tree shall flourish, the head shall be hoary; it is but a temporal crown which shall fall at the gates of Paradise to be replaced by a better and a brighter.

(The writer has always admired the noble character of Uncle Jim Grabill).

Card of Thanks.

The family wish to thank their neighbors and friends who so kindly aided and sympathized with them during the illness and after the death of their loved one.

Mrs. James Grabill and Sons and Daughters.

Biblical Quotation

The phrase "skin of my teeth" originates in the Book of Job.

AMUSEMENTS

Just like "The Big Parade," by the same director so thoroughly caught the spirit of war and transferred it to the screen with its pathos, grim humor and drama, now does "Bardelys the Magnificent," King Vidor's latest production for Metro-Golwyn-Mayer capture the spirit of the colorful, romantic, swashbuckling art of the middle ages, "the days of old, when knights were bold."

"Bardelys" is everything that could be desired in the way of screen entertainment. It is a spectacle picture, which means that it employs thousands of men and women, horses and vehicles, to gain its effects, but it is not a spectacle in the sense that the humans around whom the drama revolves are never subordinated to the mass effect.

Gilbert Courtier

John Gilbert, the star, is seen in a distinctly new screen characterization. He has the title role of "Bardelys," the handsome courtier "who could win any woman he set his mind to" and was not above boasting of it. And just such boasting leads him into a wager that the fair heroine Roxalanne, played by Eleanor Boardman, is susceptible to his wiles.

An amazing series of adventures follows. Hardly has the fair Roxalanne been brought into a plastic mood when we see Bardelys about to be sentenced to death as a traitor to his king and his rival, the treacherous Chatellerault, portrayed by Roy D'Arcy, leading Roxalanne to the altar.

But to the altar is as far as the villainous Chatellerault gets. Bardelys, who is able to vault over a line of charging spearmen, scale a wall at least one hundred feet high, swim, raging rivers on horseback and do a few other stunts, somehow eludes the hangman's noose and we find him reinstated with the king and the beautiful Roxalanne on his arm.

Vidor's picture is another contribution to classics of the screen. It has the fascinating plot twists of "The Sea Hawk" the sweep of romance and color of "The Thief of Bagdad," the dramatic qualities of "Scaramouche" and yet is totally unlike all of these.

The work of the supporting cast is flawless. Special credit must go to Karl Dane, who won his comedy spurs in "The Big Parade," George K. Arthur, Arthur Lubin and John T. Murray. The cast includes Max Barwyn, Emile Chautard, Daniel G. Tomlinson, Joseph Marba, John T. Murray, Fred Malatesta, Edward Connelly, Theodore von Eltz, Emily Fitzroy and Lionel Belmore.

Closing at the Met theater tonight.

BABY'S POSITION MOST PERILOUS

"The most dangerous occupation in the world is that of a baby, and the younger it is, the more perilous its position," asserted Captain Paul Mason in his weekly state health department talk broadcast by WAU. Monday afternoon.

"This," he said, "is proved by the records right here in Ohio. In 1925 there were 127,358 births in the state; 8,841 of these babies died before they were a year old; 2,476 died the first day, 3,684 the first week and 4,731 the first month. In 1924 there were 132,048 births, and 8,794 babies died before they were a year old.

"The human baby is the most helpless and most dependent of all beings. The motherhood instinct, however, is not enough for guidance in their care. Knowledge, based on medical science, is necessary to protect the baby against sickness and accidents."

The radio talk included a set of simple instructions upon infant feeding between birth and the first year, and also some advice for care of the pre-school youngster.—O. S. Journal.

INTERESTING MEETING

OF DERBY W. C. T. U.

The November meeting of Derby W. C. T. U., held at the home of Mrs. Martha McKinley, was a very interesting one. Topic for the afternoon; "Our Prison Reform Department." Following subjects were discussed; How to Prevent Crime, What Makes Young Criminals? How Prisoners Should be Classed and the Indeterminate Sentence.

The discussion on these subjects were fine, each lady expressed her opinion and some fine points were brought out how to prevent petty crimes, responsibility is placed upon the home, the school, religious training, swift and sure punishment, compulsory education, the boy scout movement, boys club, the farm colony for delinquents, prohibition of the sale and the use of firearms.

In addition to these cures we added that a proper enforcement of law would do much to prevent crime. Let us foster and help in the advancement of every plan having for its object the suppression and prevention of crime.

Mrs. Ruth Liston had charge of the program part of the meeting. Mrs. Clara Bauhan, superintendent of parliamentary usage gave a ten minute drill in parliamentary law. Each member is planning to carry out the rules of parliamentary law thru the year's work. Let each member bring her parliamentary book at the next meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Sara Musselman, December 14. Time of meeting has been changed on account of the days being shorter, which will begin at 1:30 Standard. Don't forget the time.

The President Mrs. Jennie Stump, will have charge of the next meeting. Topic; Good Health Essential to Activity. Assisting hostesses, Mrs. Ilo Creamer, Mrs. Matilda Gardner, Mrs. Frances Winfough and Mrs. Nelle Bauhan.

This society mourns over the loss of one of the oldest members, Mrs. Henry Deck, who passed away to the great beyond November 10.

Mod and Mass Psychology

The term "mob psychology" refers to the mental processes of a mob. It is a well-known fact that persons will do things collectively, especially in a large and disorderly gathering, which they would never think of doing individually. "Mass psychology" is used in a closely related sense.

Austrians Use Sirens to Filibuster in Diet

London.—Members of the opposition in Parliament are envying the ingenuity of the Social Democratic members of the Styrian diet, in Austria, who have evolved a method of filibustering far surpassing the old-fashioned device of delivering long-winded orations. Determined to frustrate the election of Dr. Anton Rintelen as governor of the province, the Social Democrats appeared in parliament armed with storage batteries and phonographs.

They connected the batteries with sirens, whistles, trumpets and other wind instruments and turned on the current. This cramped the parliament's style. Then they set phonographs going, playing different tunes at the same time, whereupon all legislative business was halted. These concerts were kept up for more than a week, keeping a regular schedule from 11 in the morning to 8 in the evening, with short intervals for meals.

Cockfighting Is Being Revived in England

Derby, England.—Cockfighting is being slowly revived in England, notwithstanding the law against it. During the present week a fight was secretly staged in one the Derbyshire hills. A large crowd witnessed seven battles in which five birds were killed and two maimed. The sweepstakes totaled $2,000 and there was considerable betting. "Cocker" societies are said to exist in almost every county in England and fights are staged without interference by the police.

SOLD MINE FOR $500; LOST HALF-MILLION

Canadian Prospector Original "Hard Luck" Miner.

Quenesel, B. C.—Some weeks ago the press of this continent circled the death of Abe Stott, characterized the original "hard luck" miner of this district. The story was told how Stott had sold for $500 a claim which brought its purchaser a cool half million.

Since Stott's death the story of his early adventures in the Cariboo country has been told by old-timers who knew him well and were in the territory when he listened to wisecracks who told him there could not be gold in his holdings and witnessed him sell his birthright for a mess of pottage.

Pat McKenna, a young Irish policeman, fresh from the Chicago blue-coated force, gets a place in this story, because, if he had not made Stott's acquaintance the Englishman probably never would have made his strike.

McKenna made his way up to Barkerville, the headquarters of the Cariboo miners and after a week of trying to drink the hardened miners under the table, he decided to seek a quieter spot. He ran into Stott, who told him of the quietude around Eight-Mile lake where the fish bit well.

Find Gold Near Camp.
A week in the new atmosphere was enough for the young Irishman to throw off the effect of his drinking bout and give him his fill of fishing. He decided he would do some prospecting. He did not know how to go about it and Stott, a window dresser, could give him little assistance. So Pat decided to start right at the camp.

He dug a hole in front of the tent and washed the dirt in the brook which ran by. Presently he discovered nuggets in the bottom of his pan, even though practical miners said formation of the ground barred gold. Yet the partners turned up gold nuggets whenever they felt like panning a barrowful. Occasionally they went out, fished a day or two and replenished their pokes for months at a time.

Even then the scientists wouldn't admit gold was there in paying quantities. Eventually Stott became disheartened and sold his share in the claim to Billy Ogden, an old-time prospector, for $500.

Ogden and McKenna worked their claim for a while and when a Minneapolis man named Hannah offered them $16,000 for their property they grabbed it before the buyer could change his mind. Hannah began intensive work on the mine and when he got through with it he had taken gold to the value of $500,000 from his claim.

Pat Buys a Saloon.
McKenna took his $8,000 and bought a saloon from a smart business woman. The open-hearted Irishman had trusted the woman and she had taken advantage of him, stripping the place of nearly everything of value before she turned it over to him. Pat was not a success as a saloonkeeper and the business deteriorated to such an extent that he, too, was soon out in the hills, prospecting in earnest.

But he had left it until too late. Repeated and continued efforts to uphold his reputation as a drinker had undermined his health.

"Be the howlies," he often declared, "ye can't beat them old Cariboo miners anywhere."

Pat died a few months later and was buried in the hills he loved so well. And now his partner has passed on.

Rajah Buys Auto With Light to Dazzle Animals

London.—Camouflaged in green, brown and other shades of the jungles so as to deceive the keen eyes of wild animals, a special hunting automobile has been completed here for Rajah S. M. Saadat Ali Khan of Nampara, India. A dazzle light to bewilder tigers and lions is part of the equipment of the car, which cost about $20,000.

The car is of 50 horsepower and was designed for exclusive use in the jungles. It has buffers in front and behind to protect it from charges by wild animals. It has room for six persons. Included in its equipment is an icebox for cooling bottled drinks, a water tank, a first-aid outfit and clips for rifles and shotguns.

Starched Collar Called Instrument of Torture

Paris.—That the starched collar is an instrument of torture, a strait-jacket for the neck, and must disappear is the first article in the by-laws of the Anti-Collar league, recently organized in Paris. The founders are all writers of some note, but the collarless fashion is making timid progress.

At the first meeting of the league Andre Antoine, a noted author and theatrical critic, was elected president and an executive committee formed. Press photographers in attendance asked the committee to pose for a picture. When the picture appeared in the newspapers it was found that seven out of eight on the committee were wearing stiff collars.

session on Monday evening, November 22. A good attendance listened to the interesting program prepared. The topic of the evening was Current Events and was divided into four heads:In National Affairs; In Scientific Discoveries; Activities of Women and In Foreign Countries.Mrs. Eagleson's paper dealt ably with affairs concerning the national life. She spoke of the death of four men, each of whom, in his own sphere was a national figure. These were Robert Todd Lincoln, son of the martyred president; Dr. Charles W.
Elliot, president emeritus of Harvard university; Eugene V. Debbs, four times socialist candidate for president of United States and "Uncle Joe" Cannon, loved for his whimsical personality.The appointment of Charles Evans Hughes, as a United States member of the Hague permanent court of arbitration, was well received in legal and political circles.Colonel Carmi Thompson's appointment to study conditions in the were all touched upon and made interesting, as was also President Cool-idge's speech at the dedication of the Liberty memorial to World War veterans, November 11, at Kansas City, Missouri.Her paper closed with a review of the results of the recent elections and some comments on the cotton situation and its effect upon the south.Mrs. Noecker read an interesting paper on scientific discoveries.Owing to illness the paper on Activities of Women was omitted.

Mrs. Charles Gerhardt closed the program with a paper on Current Events in Foreign Countries. She spoke of some England's problems, paying tribute to the Hon. Alanson

B. Houghton, our ambassador, and said that for the first time in our history as a nation, we owned a residence in which to house our ambassador. The dawn of a new peace was ushered in when Germany took her seat beside her ancient enemy, France, in the League of Nations at Geneva.She spoke of changing conditions in China and efforts of the Chinese to adopt western customs. At a high-class tailor shop a sign was displayed "Respectable ladies have fits upstairs."Conditions in Greece were not over looked, nor was the fact that too much emphasis is being placed upon the Anti-American feeling in France.The people of Norway at a recent election repealed the Prohibition law

Revealed in BelgradeBelgrade.—A club of women poison-ers, under the guise of a charitable organization with the significant name of "Lucretia," has been raided here.Police assert that at secret meetings the club members were taught the medieval art of mixing and administering poisons. Six women un-happily married were declared thus to have found means of ridding themselves of their husbands. The remains of these were exhumed and in two cases toxicologists have determined the presence of poisons.Five women were arrested charged with being the ringleaders of the organization.TOYS! TOYS! GIFTS!As usual you can have your goods

ROTARIANS AND ROTARY ANNS ENJOY TURKEY DINNER AT ELKS' HOME

Rudolph Wittinmeyer German Monologist; Little Ruth, Dancer, and Tom Kessler's Family Orchestra Furnished a Fine Entertainment---Joy of Occasion Was Marred By a Most Distressing Accident.

Tom Kessler and His Family Orchestra.

The members of the Circleville Rotary club with their wives and sweethearts, a total of one hundred, spent a most delightful evening Wednesday at the Elks Home on North Court street.

The occasion was the annual Thanksgiving dinner of the club and turkey, with all the trimmings, was served in the banquet rooms.

The committee in charge was R. L. Brehmer, George E. Roth and Walter Nelson, and the Rotarians and Rotary Anns were mightily pleased with the feed and the entertainment.

Rotarian Roth had charge of the program and introduced Mr. Rudolph Wittinmeyer, of Columbus, who furnished many a good laugh with his German monologues. He was roundly encored and generously responded with what seemed to be an inexhaustible fund of stories told in his inimitable, natural manner. His daughter, Little Ruth Wittinmeyer, aged ten,

avored the company with several dances, very cleverly executed.

The music before, during and after dinner was furnished by Rotarian Tom Kessler, of Lancaster, and his family orchestra, which made a good hit with the assemblage with their singing and with their playing on various instruments. All who were fortunate enough to hear this orchestra are hoping that they may soon have the pleasure of listening to them again in the near future.

Everybody was in good spirits (not frumtenti) and all was going as merrily as a marriage bell when a most untoward, unexplainable and unnecessary accident cast a pall of gloom over their rejoicing and filled their hearts with the deepest sorrow. Oscar Howard was presiding with his usual grace, dignity and tact, and he introduced Harry Stevenson, who is a few choice words, (chosen by himself) told his hearers that following the custom of Rotarians, he wished to bestow on one of the members, on behalf of the club, a precious gift. This was to be given to the Rotarian who had performed the greatest service to the community in the last twelve months.

After recounting the wonderful accomplishments of the paragon in and out of the club, he named his man and handed a glass water set consisting of pitcher and six glasses to Frank Barnhill, and told him to hand it to Bob Brehmer, as a token of the club's appreciation of his ability and willingness to do our people good.

In the excitement Frank's foot slipped, the water set went crashing to the cement floor and was broken (the water set) into a thousand pieces and eighty cents of the club's money was worse than wasted.

President Oscar "sympathized" with the chairman of the committee, but that did not restore the broken, not "cut," glassware.

Sophisticated Infant

Governess (finishing story)—"And so they were married and lived happily ever after. There! Isn't that lovely?" Modern Child—"Oh, yes, very nice; but I'd rather have the thrill of a divorce."—Boston Transcript.

Special Labor Days

The three days set aside by organized labor as its own days—Labor day, the first Monday in September; Labor Sunday, the Sunday preceding Labor day, and Labor's Memorial Sunday, the fourth Sunday in May.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The marriage of Miss Esther Olive Goldsberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Esker Goldsberry, of Walnut township to Mr. Robert W. Dietsch, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Dietsch, of West Jefferson, was solemnized Friday. Miss Goldsberry is a graduate of Walnut township high school class of '23. They will be at home after Sunday in the home of the bride's parents.—Pickaway News.

A surprise was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Goff at the home of their son-in-law, John J. Mack, and family on West Franklin street Thanksgiving day. It was in the nature of a family reunion and an elegant three course dinner was served. Covers were laid for Mrs. Harry E. Saylor, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. James Bachelor, Miss Laura Goff and George Knorr, of Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mack and their daughter, Miss Helen Mack.

Mrs. Annette Conyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herve J. Sweyer, and Mr. Emmett Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Brown, of Washington township, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents on West High street Thursday evening at 5 o'clock. Rev. Franklin McElfresh, of the First Methodist Episcopal church, was the officiating minister. The bride was becomingly attired in a creation of blue crepe with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of roses and chrysanthemums. Only the immediate relatives of both families were present. A wedding supper was served following the ceremony. The young couple went north on a wedding trip and after their return they will make their home, provided and furnished by the groom on a farm in Washington township.

Rich in Precious Metals

Mexico, the United States, Canada and Peru are the largest silver producers, in the order named. Canada is a comparatively recent entry in the list, but the Peruvian mines have been producing nearly 400 years and Mexico's for more than three centuries. Each of these countries also is a large producer of gold.

Grows in Wisdom

A very young girl is usually grateful for even the smallest gift, points out Thyra Samter Winslow in an article in Liberty, but as she grows older, and finds that men want to be rewarded for their presents, she learns "not only to look a gift horse in the mouth, but to count his teeth and examine his mane and tail as well."
